

Color Design Ideas

TRADITIONAL HOME

Kitchen Design Ideas

DECORATING & DESIGN COLLECTING ENTERTAINING GARDENS WEEKEND GETAWAYS

SEARCH

Gardens

FREE YEAR

TRADITIONAL HOME

Subscribe Now

Magazine CUSTOMER SERVICE CENTER

- Subscribe Now
- Give a Gift
- Subscribe to Our Newsletter
- Renew Your Subscription
- Change Your Address
- Join Our Reader Panel

antiques shows & art fairs

CHECK OUR CALENDAR to find an event near you

Sweepstakes & Promotions

Give Your Garden Sensory Appeal

click the photo to enlarge

1 of 28 next

1 of 28 next

Uplit Trees

By Susan W. Capparella and Anne Di Francesco

Lifestyle trends research shows that many of us are yearning to return to a simpler, more sensory time and place, a place where we can hear the trickle of a fountain, watch flames flicker on an outdoor fireplace, taste dishes brightened with herbs we've grown ourselves—and of course, stop to smell the roses. Here we show how to appeal to all five senses, turning your garden into a sensory delight.

Outdoor night lighting can create a feast for the eyes, bringing out intriguing shadows and intense highlights. Details never noticed before suddenly come alive. Advancements in new technologies use lower voltage, including solar power and LED landscape lighting, making the cost more affordable. A recent study conducted by the American Society of Landscape Architects revealed outdoor lighting is increasingly in demand.

Here, uplighting glows on trees from below and within, to magical effect.

The night lighting elements and systems depicted in the next few slides include products from Malibu and Lutron, among others.

Photo: Hoffman Landscapes, Inc.

Like 2 Share Print Comments

Connect With Us

newsletter twitter facebook blog

from subrella

company SHOP NOW

20% off all bedding

offer ends August 30

www.companyc.com Ads by Google

TRADITIONAL HOME

2013 hampton designer showhouse

July - September 2013

Sag Harbor, NY

CLICK HERE FOR MORE INFORMATION